Euramerican Heroes of the Fronter

By the Euramerican National Assembly

Agenda

- Anne Bailey
- .Louis Wetzel
- .Daniel Boone

"...I trusted in the Almighty... I knew I could only be killed once, and I had to die sometime."

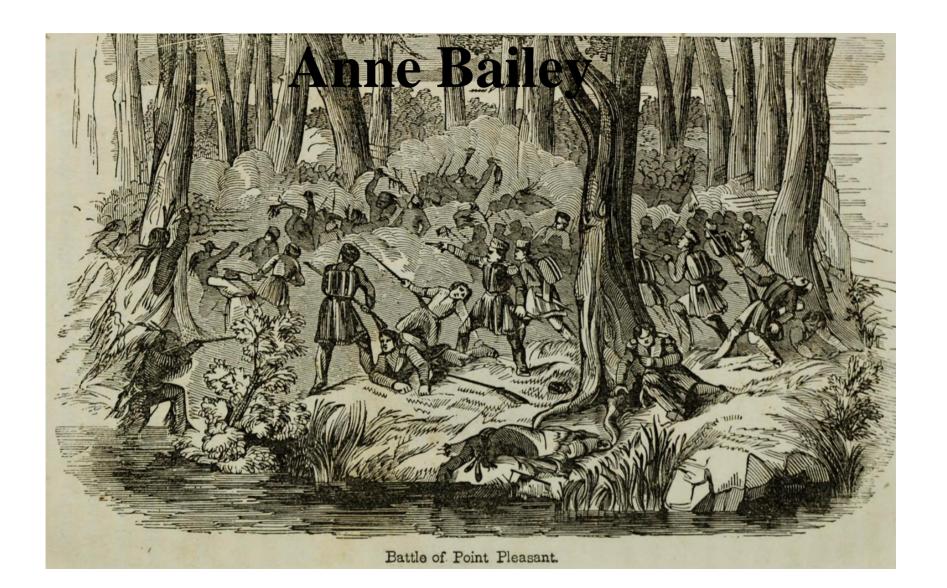

-Anne Bailey, 1823

"I am Anne Bailey, born 1742 in Liverpool England, I traveled to this country, settled outside of Staunton, Virginia, married Richard Trotter and had a son we named William. October 10, 1774 my life was irrevocably changed when my dearest husband was killed at the battle of Point Pleasant."

Jous:nabofeAnnegBailey

- Shawnee Indians were very hostile in Virginia
- October 10, 1774 Shawnee attacked Virginia Militiamen along the Ohio River near Point Pleasant, West Virginia
- •The Virginia Militia won, but unfortunately, Anne Bailey's husband was killed.

"I found myself unable to take care of William, our son was only seven year old when I gave him up to the care of a neighboring family, Mrs. and Mr. Moses Mann."

"Thus doubly grieved, I set out on my own to recruit men to fight against first the red devils who plagued us on the frontier and later against the red coats - Yes, my own country mente leave to the became known and admired as a buntress, a spy

1788, married John Bailey and posted at Fort Lee

1791 – Fort Lee under threat of attack by Shawnee

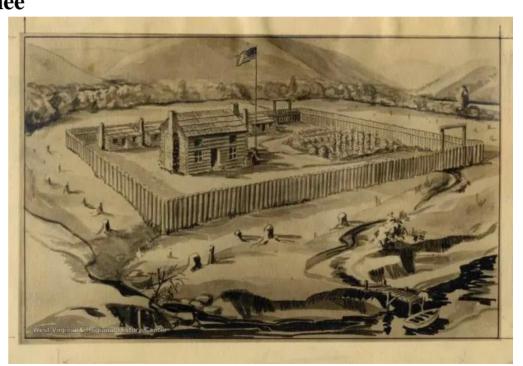

Indians

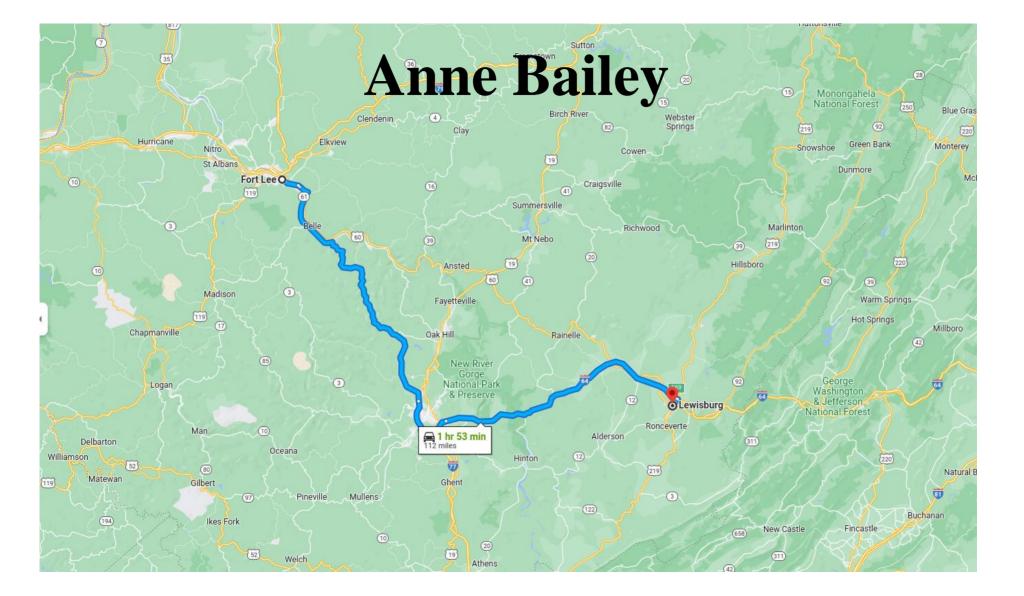

Gun Powder supplies were low

Not enough to survive Indian attacks

She alone rode to Fort Savannah in Lewisburg, W.V. -100 miles away to get gunpowder. Treacherous, dangerous trails.

She successfully returned with the needed gunpowder, saving the fort.

"Anne Bailey's Ride," poem by Charles Robb:

She spoke no word, of fear, or boast,
But smiling, passed the sentry post;
And half in hope, and half in fear,
She whispered in her husband's ear,

- Lived an eventful life as a scout with the militia
- •Indians feared her but often her skills disallowed them from catching her
- Died peacefully in her home at 83 years old in 1825

- Lived in Wheeling Creek, West Virginia
- Indians were a constant threat

 By the time he was 25, his father, brother and sister had been killed by the Indians

Taken by Indians in 1778

- Lewis, 13, and brother Jacob, 11, working family cornfield.
- Indians shot at them, wounding Lewis.
- Indians took the brothers
- •They escaped two days later

Father and Brother Killed

- In 1786, four Wetzel men traveling by canoe
- Indians shot at them, wounding his father, John, and brother, George. They died before reaching safety.
- Lewis, then 23, vowed to extol vengeance on the Indians

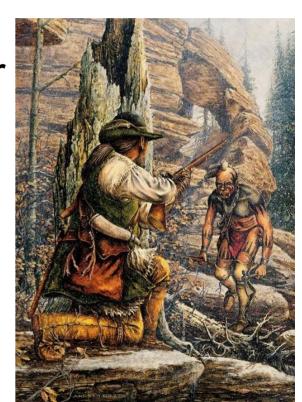

- Lewis taught himself to reload his musket on the run
- Once, when Indians tried to kill him after killing a friend, he ran off and because he was able to load and fire on the run, he killed the Indians trying to kill him one at a time as they chased him

Lewis was once hailed as famously as Daniel Boone.

He became a voracious Indian hunter and came to be feared by the Indians who called him "Death Wind."

Because he could run and fire faster than any other.

- •Once, after killing an Indian Warrior on sight, the US army forces arrested him because they were seeking peace with the Indians
- •He escaped confinement at the fort
- But, he was such a popular Indian fighter that the surrounding people raised such a ruckus that the army stopped chasing him.

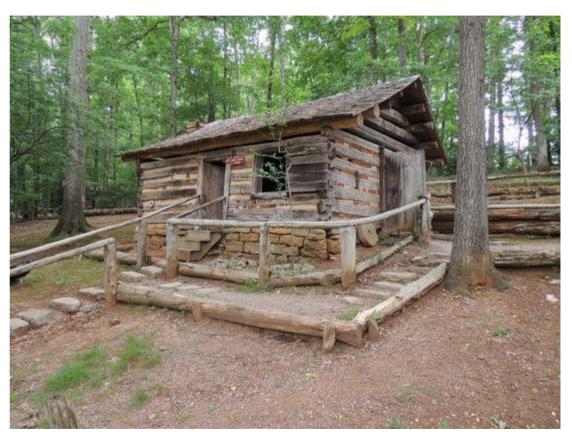

A pretty affair this, said they, to hang a man for killing an Indian when they are killing some of our people every day.

- Lewis Wetzel was greatly feared by the Indians
- He continuously waged war against them in retaliation for their warfare against Euramericans
- ·He lead a full, eventful life
- •He eventually died of natural causes, about 1808

- Born 2 Nov 1734 to Quaker family in Pennsylvania
- Pioneer and Frontiersman
- •Famous for exploration and settlement of Kentucky
- •Great Indian Fighter
- A legend in his own lifetime

- Sixth of eleven children in a family of Quakers
- Raised in a one-room log cabin in Oley Valley, Pennsylvania
- •Grew up hunting
- By 15 known as one of the region's best hunters
- •Many folktales surround Boone's life

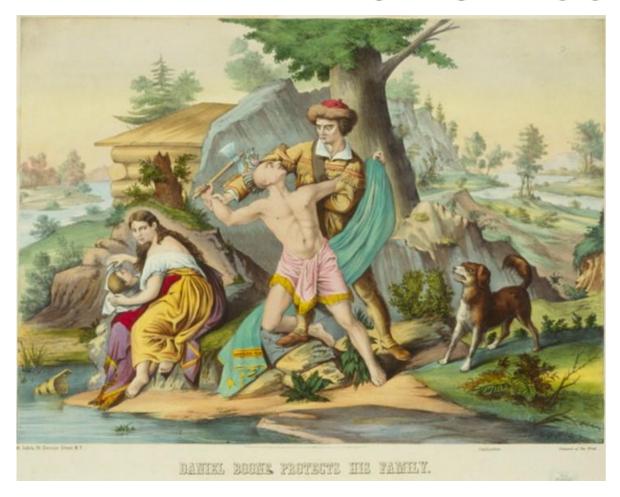

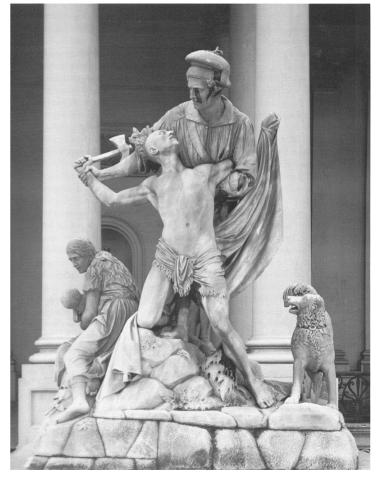

Representative Cabin from the Period

Hunter, Husband, Family Man and Soldier

- Boone joined the North Carolina Militia in the French and Indian War (1754-1763)
- •Fought in the Cherokee uprising until 1758-1761
- Married Rebecca Bryan in 1756
- Had 10 children, raised 8 children of deceased relative

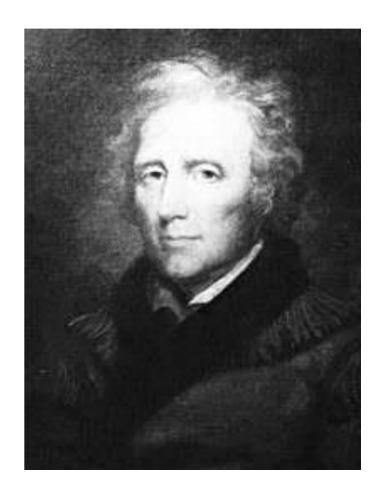

- ·Life on the Frontier was tough
- Boone worked as a hunter, trapper
- •Often traveled for months during the winter, away from home and family
- Indians were always a threat

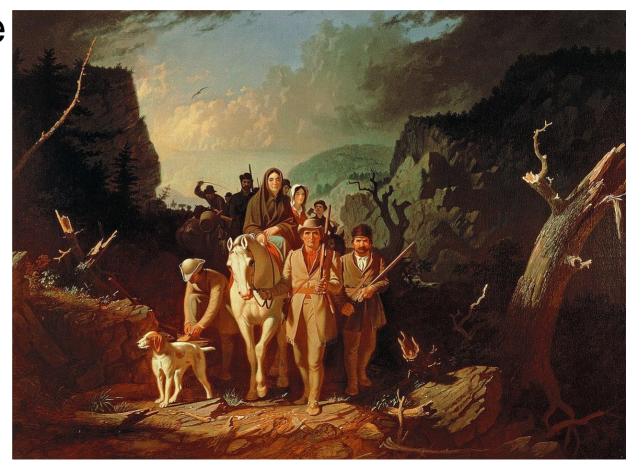

- •Taken slave by the Shawnee in 1778
- Adopted into the tribe
- Left the Shawnee tribe after they tortured and killed one of his sons

Served three terms in Virginia General Assembly until 1791

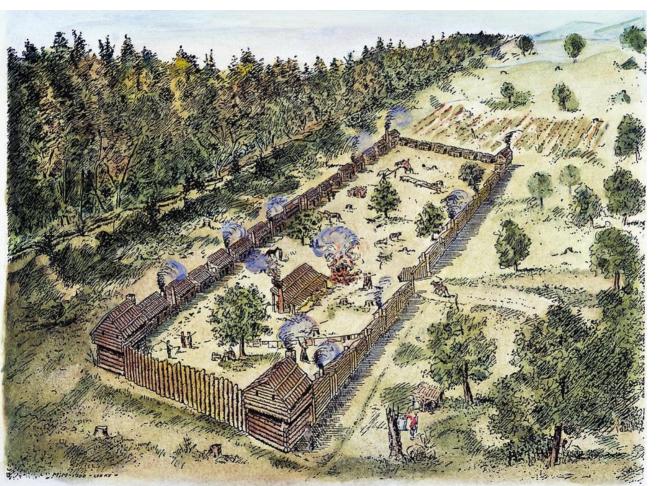

In 1775, blazed the trail into Kentucky beyond the 13 colonies

- By 1800, 200,000 Euramerican settlers made Kentucky their home
- Used the trails established by Boone, himself

- In 1773, Boone packed up his family and headed to Kentucky to settle there
- •On October 9th, while seeking supplies, Boone's and William Russell's son were captured, tortured and killed by a band of Delaware, Shawnee and Cherokees.

- Boone founded "Boonesborough along the Kentucky River
- Established 1775
- •First English-speaking settlement west of the Appalachian Mountains
- •Chartered by the Commonwealth of Virginia in 1779

FORT BOONESBOROUGH, JUST BEFORE THE SIEGE OF SEPTEMBER, 1778

Fort Boonesborough is now a Kentucky state park with a reconstruction of the early fort.

- Daniel Boone was an amazing historic figure
- •Helped the spread of Euramericans across North America
- •He was a businessman, family man, pioneer, indian fighter,
- He was a legend to our ancestors

Thank You